The Forty-Fifth UALE Northeast Summer School for Women in Unions and Worker Organizations is a four-day residential program sponsored by the United Association for Labor Education. The school brings together rank-and-file members, staff, and officers of unions and workers' rights organizations to strengthen their knowledge and understanding of the U.S. labor movement. UALE advocates education as an essential tool to develop new activists and leaders who will grow and transform the labor movement.

This year's school will be hosted by the LABOR School at Penn State. Participants stay on campus in single dorm rooms with private bathrooms. All rooms are non-smoking.

Fees: $725 union members or $500 worker organization. Residential fee includes tuition, housing, and meals for the four days of summer school. The $375 commuter fee includes tuition and two meals per day.

A limited number of scholarships are available and based on individual need. The form is available on our website.
